

Andrew F. Bruskin | Associate

Andrew Bruskin joined the law firm of Russell Friedman & Associates in 2019 bringing a diverse background in personal injury, no-fault and healthcare law to our prestigious team.

Attorney Bruskin represents hospitals, doctors and other medical providers when they are denied reimbursement by major insurance companies under the New York No Fault regulations. He handles the no-fault arbitration process from inception to conclusion. Mr. Bruskin has handled over 10,000 no-fault arbitration hearings, over 100 no-fault arbitration master appeals and has written over a dozen Article 75 briefs. He is also knowledgeable about the EUO and the verification process. Additionally, Mr. Bruskin advises clients on proper billing procedures and the New York State Fee Schedule.

Mr. Bruskin graduated from Stony Brook University, with a degree in history and political science. While there, he decided cases on the University's Supreme Court, the Student Judiciary and the Academic Judiciary. He also interned for the United States Senate. Mr. Bruskin then attended law school at the College of William & Mary. While there, he was a contributing Editor to the William & Mary Constitutional Law Society.

Just because an attorney zealously represents a client does not mean the attorney has to be hostile to other parties. Mr. Bruskin is a strong advocate in the courtroom and at arbitration hearings, cultivating favorable decisions from judges and arbitrators due to his kindness, his consideration and his legal preparation. Mr. Bruskin devotes much attention to his clients and great care to his legal work. He will be happy to meet with you when it is convenient for you, even on evenings or weekends.
